FAIL TO COMPLETE JURY IN ASSAULT AND BATTERY CASE

Two Venturers Selected for Trial of Junius T. Hooper. Many Spectators on Hand This Morning.

F. S. Baines and John Lloyd have been selected as two of the members of the jury in the case of Edward Fitzpatrick against Junius T. Hooper and Miss Gertrude Seaton, charged with assault and battery.

Another list of names will be drawn this afternoon and it is hoped that the jury will be completed so that the taking of testimony can start tomorrow.

Early this morning the court room started to fill and at ten o'clock there were about twenty spectators. Several students from the Institute for the blind have been called as witnesses and were at the court this morning. The trial will open at ten o'clock tomorrow morning before Judge Maxfield.

BURNS COMPANY REMODELS STORE

Transferring of Ready-to-Wear Department to Second Floor Makes Big Change in Store Appearance.

One is now greeted with an entirely new and attractive view when they step into the T. P. Burns Company store. The change has been occasioned by the removal of the ready-to-wear department, which used to be on the second floor, to the first floor. The space thus gained has been given over to the dry goods department and is at the present time being used for the displaying of toys and dolls. The new ready-to-wear department is a model of its kind, the light is best, the garments are all neatly arranged in specially designed containers of glass and silver and are finished with wood. The Burns Company felt it necessary to make these changes because of an increasing volume of business and the anticipation of the growth of the city.

RED CROSS SQUAD AFTER MEMBERSHIPS

Special Committee Starts to Clean Up Canvass. Those Who Will Be Given Chance to Join.

The special committee appointed by Victor P. Richardson general chairman for Christmas Red Cross Roll Call started out to finish the job of making Janesville 100 per cent organized in Red Cross membership. Early reports indicated that a number of persons who were missed by the first canvass had been found and are now wearing a 1919 button.

The committee has mapped out a plan of campaign which will call for a visit to each person who does not wear the button or who does not display a hundred per cent banner.

"There are a number of persons who were not reached in the first visit of workers," said Mr. Richardson. "They do not want the boys to come back and find that they are not wearing a 1919 button. We want to give them every opportunity to get these buttons which serve as receipts for memberships. We do not wish to slight any one. The members of the committee will visit every home which does not have a 100 per cent banner and will give those living there a chance to join the 1919 class.

"We are most happy over the result of the initial canvass and when the results are complete I am sure Janesville will have at least 8,000 Red Cross members. This will be 5,000 more than she had in 1918.

Few memberships were added yesterday to the number already obtained because most of the workers were finishing up their territory. The total number paid up and in the hands of the cashier at the Chamber of Commerce last night is 5,786 for the city and 2,652 for the country. Many of the captains in the factories and business district have enrolled numbers and have not turned in to the cash at the Chamber of Commerce.

Four minute speakers gave a talk on the Red Cross during the programs which were given in all the schools this afternoon.

PROPAGANDA IS DISCUSSED FREELY

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Dec. 20.—When Alfred L. Becker, deputy state attorney general of New York, testified before the senate committee, he discussed the financing of the propaganda program. He said the German government was "going to" in its hopes of financing the scheme through Kuhn, Loeb and company of New York. He declared the bank imposed such difficult conditions that it had to go elsewhere for financial arrangements.

In discussing the Kuhn, Loeb and company incident, Mr. Becker gave the committee an account of an affidavit made by Count James Minotto, an Italian subject and son-in-law of Louis Swift, whose internment was ordered by President Wilson. In that affidavit Count Minotto told of a conference he had with Mr. Kuhn, after his return from Europe in 1915 in which an investment in the Anglo-French loan by Kuhn, Loeb and company was discussed. Mr. Kuhn was quoted as saying that while his firm had not invested in the loan he and Mortimer Schiff did not deny having personally invested in it.

Mr. Becker said the purpose of reading the affidavit was to show that in 1915 Kuhn Loeb and company were "mainly neutral."

Mr. Becker also said that the purpose was to show that while Mr. Kuhn was telling the French government that they had subscribed to the Anglo-French loan, they were also telling the German government that they had not subscribed.

Senator Nelson remarked that he had met Mr. Kuhn while the latter was in France and that he was satisfied that there were not more loyal citizens than he.

Wall Street. Closing covering exercised a stabilizing influence at the opening of today's stock market, particularly in calls and other representative shares which suffered in the heavy selling of the final hour of the previous session. The market closed with a gain, the Dow Jones industrial average ending at 114.12, up from 113.12 at the opening.

Initial rallies in the stock market today after short covering had run its course. Inquiry for calls proved light and gains in that group were small. Pennsylvania's new bond issue was not considered and adverse factor. Brooklyn transit recovery and preferred lost 1½ points. Industrials, equipment and copper rallied. Inter-mittent pressure. United States Steel making its lowest quotation of the week. Oil also showed a degree of recovery. Mexican petroleum rising 2½ points.

Selling diminished in volume during the middle of the session, but leaders recorded additional losses with numerous speculative issues. Ranks of the steel and southern divisions, shippings, steels and coppers, leathers, American telephone and other industrial and other utilities lost one to entirely no points.

Cotton Report

Washington, Dec. 20.—Cotton gained prior to December 19, was 10,252,402 bales including 139,074 round bales; 12,793 bales of American extra; 13,100 bales of Sea Island. The cotton bureau today reported.

Prior to December 19 last year, 178,000 round bales and 83,288 bales of sea island.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Oats hardened with corn. The market however was dull. After opening 7½¢ to 7½¢ prices continued to climb.

Upturns in provisions resulted from the corn. Chicago Grain. Chicago, Dec. 20.—Despised rain and a lack of continued unfavorable weather gave the corn market today a pronounced advance. The day, a pronounced advance was regarded as likely to prove a serious hindrance to the crop movement. Conditions were further as a stimulus to buyers. Opening prices which ranged from 1½¢ to 1½¢ and may 1½¢ to 1½¢, were followed by a decided additional gain.

Removal of war restrictions on mills tended to lift the market still more and so too, did advances in the cotton. The program was regarded with favor by the allies and that henceforth to import Argentine corn was not likely to be a serious hindrance to the crop movement. The market closed unsettled, 1½¢ to 1½¢ higher, with January 1½¢ to 1½¢ and May 1½¢ to 1½¢.

1½¢ buyers, kept the market generally on the up grade.

HEARD FROM OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS

In a letter written from a hospital in France, Allen Dearborn, who left for France fourteen months ago, vividly describes the joy in France when news of the signing of the armistice was received. Young Dearborn was recently gassed and after being in the hospital for two months is now about to join his battery, of the Rainbow division, which is now marching through Germany. For over a year he has been a member of Battery E of the 149th Field Artillery and has seen much active service.

His letter follows:

France, Nov. 14, 1918.

Well I am still in the hospital but expect to get back to the Battery any day now. I am feeling in a No. 1 condition, and I sure want to get back with the old bunch.

It is pretty hard to realize that this great war is over isn't it? But it certainly is great news. I can imagine the celebration that took place in the states and I'll assure you that France was a pretty gay place also.

On the evening of November 11, 1918, eleven o'clock every gun ceased firing, thus making the old world peaceful again. At seven o'clock that evening I was located at the Red Cross rooms near by. We were all discussing the great news, when suddenly the news of a band came to our ears. Down the street came a good old American band, playing "Hot Time in the Old Town New York".

After a few numbers, everyone joined in a big parade and started for the town square. Such a parade, it was composed of Frenchmen, Algerians, Americans and it seemed soldiers from every corner of the globe. In addition to the soldiers were French and American nurses, French and American generals, railroad men, little children, yes people from every walk of life. All were screaming, shouting, laughing, crying, while off in the distance the sirens (which so long a time had given the signals of the approach of the German aeroplanes) were ringing, whistles were blowing, and the church bells and chiming which for over long years had remained silent, were now ringing, clear and sweet, ending the peace on earth good will to men.

PARKER

SAFETY SEALED

FOUNTAIN PEN

Keep the Home Fires Burning

IN your list of what you give him for Christmas, include a Parker Safety-Sealed Fountain Pen. He will appreciate it.

The Parker is the favorite of the boys in khaki and blue—hundreds of thousands of them prefer it because of certain features which they will tell you cannot be found in any other pen.

The Parker is SAFETY SEALED—Injury to self-filling mechanism automatically changes it to a non-self-filler with no chance of leakage. It has no opening in the wall of barrel for presser bars, levers, or projections.

NOTE: Should an accident occur to any Parker Pen, no matter when purchased if the pen is owned by any man wearing the uniform of a U. S. soldier, sailor or flyer, it will be repaired by us free of charge.

The same features that have made the Parker the favorite of Uncle Sam's fighters also make it the ideal gift for the folks at home.

MUCH HONOR.

France, Belgium, Italy, England and all the smaller nations of Europe seek to honor "Our President" now across the waters. Paris has not yet recovered from its celebration of England's preparation for it. Even the King and his Christmas plans to be in London when Woodrow Wilson arrives. Way back in old King George's time, he of the Hanoverian line, third in title, the bluff, old gentleman with a German cognomen did not have to put on his spectacles to read the argument that was signed by John Macdonald and even the trembling hand of Stephen Hopkins was plain enough for him to see, sent him by the thirteen colonies. Today the King of England foregoes his Christmas holiday, the first after years of strenuous war, to greet the representative of the republic across the seas that on July 4th, 1776 declared itself free and independent of England. Time certainly makes a decided difference and it all shows that blood is thicker than water. We have stood by the French in this war because the French stood by us in Seventy-six, and the years that followed. Our boys have fought side by side with the colonists of Great Britain and the "minutemen" of the tight little Isle itself, because we speak the same language and the same blood runs through our veins as theirs.

When you come right down to it England is a sort of a polychrome nation after all. Celts, Scots, Picts, Normans, Danes, Welsh, Irish, Saxons, Angles and now they say Basques inhabit the land of fogs and mists centuries ago. Their re-incarnation came by degrees, while the United States took into its midst the people of northern and southern Europe, of Asia and Africa, of central Europe, and molded them with the original settlers from England into one vast nation called Americans.

Today our American President is in Europe. He is recognized as an American and he is received as a person of royal blood seldom is welcomed. It is an honor to the nation, and while he himself enjoys the effect, the warmth of that welcome belongs to every citizen of the United States whose representative he is. The United States is coming into its own, and it is about time. The greatest nation on the face of the globe, the richest nation on the list of world powers, it has demonstrated it is not composed of a money-grubbing people, but a fighting nation, and looking back into the old colonies of a century ago you will find a people which says: "For he tread on the tail of my coat." That is our position right now and we are proud of it and of the welcome given our representative abroad.

APPEALING TO THE EYE.

If you go to the grocery store, you will find a certain cereal selling for 21 cents a pound in bulk. But the chances are you will pay 14 cents for a box of the same cereal, containing 14 pounds, or about 9 cents a pound. The grain is just the same, but you merely pay the 21 cents for the fancy looking paper and pretty picture. Then you have the higher burning up the cereal box, and a certain amount of useful paper stock is wasted.

Some people defend the paper box habit, on the ground that the food product put up in that way is sure to be clean. But food manufacturers use care nowadays. The producer no doubt has his barrels in just as good condition as the containers from which the paper box is filled.

The freezer clips it out with a clean scoop, and puts it into a clean paper bag without handling it. It ought to be sanitary. The American people are paying an enormous sum of money to have their food products sold in pretty looking fancy boxes.

Food producers have no doubt pushed the sale of paper box products. For a time an enterprising dealer could sell more of his products in this way. But in these days when a pretty paper box is an old story, and when people are looking for substantial worth at the lowest price, the food man might well push the sale of his products in bulk.

Grocers would do well to advertise products sold that way, so that the people shall clearly understand how much cheaper they are. Producers should take the utmost pains to have such goods put up in the cleanest possible way. They might well send circulars around describing their methods. The retailers should be able to assure the public that the bulk product is just as clean as the stuff in the box with the picture of the pretty girl on it.

"COME ON, KICK IN!"

Tomorrow is the shortest day of the year. The sun rises at exactly twenty-one minutes past seven and it sets at thirty-four minutes past four. Make this day one to be remembered by doing what the long phrase at the head of this article says: "Come on, kick in!" You know what that means? Join the Red Cross. If you are not a member now, join. If you are, secure some one else to become one, but put that little Geneva button on your coat or vest or waist, or wherever you wear it, and be proud you are one of those people who are "putting across" this great work of rehabilitation. Read the letters the boys write from across the water of the wonderful work of this organization of tireless workers. Look into the dispatches and discover that when the armistice was signed how a Red Cross contingent, driven by AMERICAN GIRLS was the first to enter the German lines and how they were royally received by the soldiers no longer warring upon the defenseless.

CHRISTMAS GIVING.

There used to be a good many people who felt it necessary at Christmas time to remember anywhere from fifty to one hundred of their friends, sometimes more than that. Many of these souvenirs of course were trifles that cost little. Still the whole program was very excessive and such persons came through to Christmas thoroughly tired out.

The amount of useless truck that used to be distributed at Christmas was incalculable. But the people who made these gifts did it out of kindness of heart. For the past year they have been too busy caring for real needs to spend time on follies. Let us hope that as a result the Christmas gift custom will be permanently changed. Let us take the money formerly spent on trifles for friends, and give it in substantial to the poor. Let the children have useful tools and instructive games and implements of outdoor sport, rather than mechanical toys that break down in a week.

After people have given so splendidly to the war work, let us hope folks in comfortable circumstances will never again think they are doing a big thing when they give a dollar to local charity and church causes.

The highways have run down a good deal during the past year, because of scarcity of labor, while a lot of able-bodied jail prisoners are engaged on work that a child could do.

While the influenza epidemic is pretty well over, coughs and sneezes still make themselves popular by keeping in as much seclusion as possible.

Food saving must continue. Don't feed the pigs a lot better stuff than what a lot of the noble soldiers of our allies are getting.

The congressmen are all going to make a record favoring economy in the nation and big appropriations for their own districts.

The fellows who are profiteering in food now, before long will be complaining that there is no trade and business is rotten.

Albert Voss died at his home south of town Tuesday. He had been suffering with the influenza and was gaining when he suffered a relapse. He was about 45 years of age. His funeral will be held at his home Thursday. Rev. Berger having charge. His death came as a great shock as his grandmother passed away from the same disease about three weeks ago, and other members of the family are ill.

A great increase in the rat population of England is thought to be due largely to the decrease in the number of dogs which have been gradually starved out by the exigencies of war, the feeding of dogs having become a serious matter when food was scarce. Rats have increased enormously all over England, both in the cities and rural districts, and an organized campaign of extermination has become necessary. The difficulty is to obtain a suitable poison. Local authorities will probably find that if any good is to be done they will have to set up a rat-destruction instruction office and supply the dogs for the average household possesses little knowledge of rat killing.

ROY K. MOUTON

FLICKERING FAME

Nations have grown, Bill, nations have perished.
Ages have come, Bill, ages have fled, Leaving behind everything that they cherished.
Going to join the ranks of the dead,
Monarchs have risen in militant glory,
Sweeping their footmen from land,
and from sea,
But the same "Fins" marks every life story.
Take it from me, Bill, take it from me.

We can't all win the top rung of the ladder!
Maybe it ain't what we're cut out to do.

That is no sign we can't make the world gladder
Just with our own little stunts me,
and you.

All can't to fiddle old Fams be contented.
Some must be humble, you will agree.

Just do your darndest and you'll die contented.

Take it from me, Bill, take it from me.

By the way, what has become of Frank Hollenzollern—formerly a younger brother or something?

Someway or other, we don't believe we could ever bring ourself to confer a life sentence at Sing Sing on an American soldier who knocked a red flag out of the hands of a Bolshevik.

AT CHRISTMAS TIME,
I've always heard a deal about the "Woman with the past."
Little drama always see her billed Away up in the cast.
But when this season rolls around
And wife comes from the store,

The woman with the present is
"The one whom I adore."
—J. T. W.

HOW TO MAKE A PROBLEM PLAY.

Take the following ingredients, mix thoroughly and set them on the stove until they come to a boil:
One poor and nearsighted husband, who has to work and can't stay around the house.
One attractive and ambitious blond wife (peroxide).
One millionaire who is "unhappily married."
One eighty horsepower automobile.
One gossiping housemaid.
One intercepted letter.
One police officer.
One revolver.

There are still a few old-fashioned fellows in this country who try to make both ends meet, but they do not receive much encouragement.

Lord Curzon says oil won the war.
Yes, strap oil.

WAR MEMORIALS.

Cleveland is asking for the spoils of war; she wants one of the great cannon captured at Metz for a public square to stand as a memorial to the war and the part her troops played in it. This is an idea worth considering.
It seems probable that it is one to meet with approval from the returning soldiers, and with the great public, too. There is more than sentiment in the perpetuation of memory by concrete means. The memory of this war and of the nation's great expedition to end it rightly is something epochal in our history that will live and that ought to be kept vividly alive.—Rochester Post-Express.

WATCHDOG DAYS.

We shall now again hear more or less vociferously from the "watch dog of the treasury," who never had such an opportunity in his life and will be less than human if he does not jump to it. And this time he will find people very tolerant of his activities.

ceived word that her son, Ensign Alfred Wolf, who is an aviator stationed at a navy air station at Hampton Roads, West Virginia, is carrying official mail from that field to the city of Washington. He is reported as doing splendid work in flying.

Gus Paulus, who formerly conducted a popcorn stand at Baker's drug store corner, has returned from Camp Sherman where he has been in training for infantry service. He received his discharge and will make Janesville his home.

Word has been received that Francis Green, who has been in the aviation training school at Eberts Field, Long Oak, Ark., has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the United States air service. He also received the grade "A" which places him in the line for parent pilots. He expects to receive his discharge from active service and be placed on the reserve list shortly.

Visiting in City.
Mrs. Howard P. Marshall is in the city for a visit this week. She came from Arcadia, Florida, where her husband has been stationed at an army camp. He has been released from service and will join her after the new year. They expect to make their home in Milwaukee.

NEW YORK'S FIRST WOMAN LEGISLATOR

Mrs. Ida B. Sammis.

When the New York assembly convenes January 1st at Albany Mrs.
Ida B. Sammis will take her place among the legislators as the first "assemblywoman" of that state. Mrs.
Sammis has been active in the womelection she won by a majority of about 1,000 votes over the Democratic nominee.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THOUGHTS IN RELIGIONS.
I reckon when this life is through
About the first thing God will do
Is call together all the creeds
Which men have shaped to serve Their needs.

And talk it over, pro and con,
And then make all religions one.
He'll take the best of each and say:
"We'll throw the minor frills away,
And as I take your creeds apart,
You'll find you're all the same at heart."

So one religion ought to do
For Catholic, Protestant and Jew.
He'll tell us in that happy land
"Now here you see and understand, You've passed across the vale of doubt
And learned the truth you fought about."

Your destination was the same Although by different routes you came.
"Behold the good you labeled bad,
The false among the truth you had.
Of all the creeds which mortals wrote,
Not one caught true perfection's note,
Nor was there one, however despised,
But what had truth, if good it prized."

Neither hate nor love a man
According to religion's plan;
If he be good of word and deed,
I never ask what other creed
A fancy God will later on Make all religions into one.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of eighteen, doing stenography. I have been going with a man four years may senior for the past two years. I have never had more regard for him than I have had in the past year. He looks so heroic and manly in his uniform that I really think I like him.

He says he loves me and wants to marry me. I let him kiss me once and now he wants to kiss me all the time. Is it wrong for him to kiss me unless we are truly engaged?

How can I be sure I love him? Don't you think if I refuse to let him kiss me he will give me up?

DISTRESSED.

A girl should not kiss a man unless she is engaged to him.

If you are in doubt about your love for him, you may be sure your regard is not love.

If he gives you up because you will not kiss him, you do not love you, he loves your kisses.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a young boy who lives close to me, and also the city boy's father is a big merchant in town. The country boy's father is making a good living and that is all I love both boys, but I love the country boy more than I do the other.

Please inform me what I should do. I choose a husband from a material standpoint brings about unsatisfactory results. The father's financial position should have nothing whatever to do with the case.

There is no reason why you should not keep both the young men as friends until you become engaged.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are three very good friends, one is a brunette and two blondes. We all have many boy friends who admire us, but they are not our social level. They are willing to take us to dances, but not to church or any religious services. What would you advise us to do to attract the proper sort?

WINKUM, BLINKUM, and NOD.

Go to the religious services you seem to enjoy so much and in time you will become acquainted with the young men who attend. You will find, I think, that you can be of good character and social standing if they refuse to attend church and religious services with their girl friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: If a boy insists on walking on the inside of the walk on the other side? W. E. M.

In olden times it was necessary for the man to walk on the outside of the woman in order to protect the woman from robbers and other undesirable characters. Now there is little danger to the woman and so the custom has outgrown its usefulness.

Of course it is much more pleasant if the man observes the custom, but the woman should not mention the fact if he does not.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been married just one year and six months. After we were married about six months my husband got so he would not stay in the house. He started to go with other women. How can I keep him in the house with me?

What would you do with a man like that? H. K. McD.

The only way you can keep your husband in the house is to be a little more attractive and interesting than the other women he seems to enjoy. To do this is the problem.

Be even more careful about your appearance than you were before marriage. Never look dowdy when he is at home. If you use old curlers, for instance, put them on during the day. Wear cheerful colors and up-to-date styles.

Take an interest in your husband, but don't let him realize what you are doing. Ask questions about matters which you know will interest him and compliment him when he has done something well. A little flattery goes a long way in keeping a husband's interest.

If you have no children, it might be a good thing for you to go to work for a while. This will give you a broader viewpoint and more money.

Do not be afraid to ask for money or to spend it, because if your husband has enough to spend on other women he has enough for you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: At a flag raising in the national hymn is sung and the flag is raised?

MUTT AND JEFF.

The hat should be raised.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Through the Back Door.

Doctors are always observing life through the back door. They know life, therefore, more intimately than gentlemen of the cloth do. For when the pastor calls, the head of the house grabs his cane and opens the door, but he is in place and dusts the Bible before she lets him in whereas when the doctor calls no one feels like preparing the house at all.

Probably more than half of a general practitioner's work leads him to the back door of the nose, throat, and ear. He hesitates and turns away from the door; he is not prepared to open it and see what is within. He takes it for granted; that means guesswork.

Assume you have a well trained family doctor. He puts on his head mirror and peers into the nasal cavity from the front door. If he doesn't approve of all he sees there he slips around to the back door, and you begin to worry, of course. He can't look directly at a sore throat, but he can look through the back door of the nose, has to content himself with a glance around a corner, a mere image of it in a little throat mirror.

In the brief instant you permit him to hold the mirror up to your throat, he has a chance to look at the back door of the nose, has to content himself with a glance around a corner, a mere image of it in a little throat mirror.

DIFFERENT PIES

Pineapple Pie (with and without meringue).

Lemon Pie—Three-quarter cup sugar, three-quarter cup boiling water, two eggs, three tablespoons lemon juice, grated rind of one lemon, one teaspoon butter.

Mix the cornstarch and sugar, add the boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook two minutes, add the butter, the egg yolks and the rind and juice of the lemon. Line a plate with pastry. Put the mixture in the plate, larger than the plate and build up a rim; flute with the fingers first dipped in flour. Turn in the mixture which has been cooled and bake until the pastry is done. Cool slightly and cover with a meringue, then return to oven and bake meringue.

Meringue—Beat white of two eggs until stiff and gradually two tablespoons powdered sugar and continue beating; then add one-half teaspoon lemon juice or one-quarter teaspoon vanilla.

Chocolate Raisin Pie—Bake pastry shell over inverted pie plate. Cook one-half cup ground seeded raisins in one-third cup water for thirty minutes. Sift together three tablespoons flour, one-quarter cup sugar and three eggs and stir into the raisins. Add one square chocolate, broken in pieces, and pour into the mixture one cup boiling water, stirring constantly while cooking until one-half cup butter, one-half cup cream with yolks of two beaten eggs and cook carefully a few minutes longer. Add one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon and one-half cup seeded raisins cut in pieces. Take from fire, cool slightly, pour into baked crust, cover with meringue from stiffly beaten whites of two eggs with one-half teaspoon sugar and three one-half tablespoons powdered sugar. Sprinkle shredded coconut over meringue and brown delicately in moderate oven.

TRY THESE.

Drying Squash—If your winter squashes are not keeping well, slice about one-quarter inch thick and dry on plates in the oven. When wanted for use, soak several hours or overnight and cook like fresh squash.

Stopping Leaks—When water pipes burst from frost and the plumber cannot be had, a sheet of old paper oil from the top of a can of old paint placed over the break and then wrapped with a bandage, will stop the leak and last for a year or more.

A very small bone, only one square millimetre—0.155 square inch—in diameter, will hold thirty-three pounds in suspension without breaking, while a piece of the best oak of the same thickness will hold up only twenty-two pounds.

SIDE TALKS

—BY— RUTH CAMERON

One Reason Men Don't Go To Church.

"Why don't men go to church?" said one of three wives who were walking home from church together—husbandless.

"Can it be that they would go more if they could do the talking themselves?" suggested another.

"Shouldn't wonder at all," said a third; "my cousin used to say that the reason he couldn't bear to go to church was because he couldn't answer back."

"Thinking," someone has said, "is just what nobody wishes to do."

One can substitute another word for thinking, and still speak the truth.

Listening is just what nobody wishes to do.

They Simply Wait For Their Turn.

Some people, in fact, never listen at all. They simply wait for their turn to talk.

Haven't you seen a group of people sitting together talking and noticed the one who is in the center of the group, with which different ones awaited their turn to speak?

Finally you notice it sometimes in yourself—how little attention you were paying to what was being said.

and how eagerly you were waiting for an opening to mention your like or dislike, relate your starting coincidence, tell your amusing anecdote?

Would You Rather Tell A Good Story Or Hear One?

I feel sure that if they told the truth about it, there would be found but few people who wouldn't rather be telling an interesting story than hearing one.

At last in hearing we are enriched and in telling we are not.

Truly this is a rare example of instinctively generous emotion.

When one listens one learns, when one listens one avoids all danger of boring or of betraying ignorance, when one listens one gives pleasure to others and hence increases one's stock of that which we all so eagerly desire—popularity.

Shall I Make Too Many Listeners?

As I read over this list I am so impressed by the strength of my plea that I fear perhaps I shall convert too many and leave too few to talk. But I suspect I need not be afraid. I should like a dollar for every writer who has made these pleas in one form or another before; and still we do not seem to suffer from too many listeners.

CHAPTER VII.

It was a time when everybody was cutting down appropriations, reducing expenses. Cities, counties, states, nations were all paying the penalty of former extravagance by present economies. Rich people were positively boastful of their penuries.

The three women assailed a flat of things for Daphne's trousseau with the ruthlessness of an auditing committee. They cut out this and that, decided that this gown could be omitted or postponed, that waist could be had in a cheaper quality, these parasols were not really necessary, those stockings need not be so numerous all at once.

And yet even Mrs. Kip admitted that the whole array was far beyond the reach of her husband's means. Still she insisted that he could provide a partial trousseau at least. She herself would "go without things" for ten years if necessary.

Daphne, however, was haunted by the vision of her father's harrowed, money-hungry face. When her mother reminded her that it was his last chance to do anything for her, she retorted, "Yes, and it's my last chance to do anything for him."

Her pride was wrung by her plight. She must either go shabby or cause acute distress to one or both of the men that were dearest of all in the world to her. She must leave behind her a burden of debt as a farewell tribute to her father, or she must bring with her a burden of debt as her dot.

"No!" she cried, with a sudden impatient slash at the Gordian knot. "Clay will have to take me just as I am or take back his diamond ring he wished on me."

Her defiance was not convincing. Her mother protested:

"It's not Clay that you have to consider. He'll never know what you have on. It's the guests at the wedding—and your old friends and the neighbors. You don't want them to think we're poor and that your father is merrily off his head, do you?"

Daphne flared back. "It seems mighty foolish to go and make yourself really poor in order to keep from seeming poor, especially when you never feel anybody except yourself."

Lella, with the magnanimity of a native spendthrift, tried to soothe the fever of the rebel: "Let's go prowling around, anyway. I may see something I want for myself. Bayard dragged me away from Paris before I had finished shopping. There are several things I need desperately."

PETEY DINK—NOBODY CARES IF PETEY GETS LOST

The three wise women set forth; they joined the petticoated army pouring from all the homes like a levee en masse, a foray of pretty Huns.

They reached the alluring place where the famous Dutilh, like an amiable Mephistopheles, offered to buy souls in exchange for robes of angelic charm.

In the window, on a dummy, with no head, no feet, and a white satin bust

In the Window on a Dummy With No Head, No Feet, and a White Satin Bust Hung a Gown That Seemed to Cry Aloud to Daphne.

hung a gown that seemed to cry aloud to Daphne:

"I belong to you and you belong to me! Fill me with your flesh and I will cover you with an aureole."

The three forlorn women understood the message instantly. They looked at one another, then, without a word, entered the shop, doomed in advance.

Lella was known to Dutilh and he greeted her with an extravagant impudence that terrified Mrs. Kip:

"You little devil!" he hissed. "Get right out of my theater. How dare you come here after letting somebody else build your trousseau?"

Lella apologized and explained and he pretended to be mollified as he pretended to have been insulted. Having thus made the field his own, he turned to Daphne, studied her frankly with narrowed eyes as if she were asking to be a model, and sighed:

"Oh, what a narrow escape!"

Daphne jumped and gasped, "From what?"

"That gown in the window, that Lavinia that was born for you. You must have seen it—the afternoon one in parchment-toned tulle!"

The women, astounded by his intuition, nodded and breathed hard, like terrified converts at a séance. He was referring to the one that belonged to Daphne, and he ordered her to get into it at once.

She demurred: "I'm afraid of the price. How much is it, please?" "Don't talk of money!" Dutilh stormed. "I hate it! Let's see the gown on you." He called one of his tawny mupkins. "Help Miss Kip into this gown, Myria!"

A mournful-eyed beauty led Daphne into a dressing room and acted as maid. Daphne stepped out of her street suit into the Parisian froth as if she were going from chrysalis to butterfly. Myria was murmurous with homages as she fastened it together and led Daphne forth.

Mrs. Kip felt as if she had surrendered a mere daughter and received back a seraphic changeling. Daphne was no longer a pretty girl; she was something ethereal, bewitched and bewitching. If she could own that gown her mother would be repaid for all her pangs from travail on. She would accept the gown as advance royalty on any future hardships.

Daphne looked about for Lella, but Lella was gone. She reappeared a moment later in a costume almost more delicious than Daphne's—a tunic of peach-blow tulle caught up with pink rosebuds and hanging from a draped bodice of peach-blow satin that formed a yoke low on the hips. And there was a narrow petticoat of peach-pink satin. It was as if peaches had a soul, as perhaps they have.

Perfect happiness is said to need, a bit of horror to make it complete. The happiness of the two girls did not lack that element. The price of their glory furnished it. They asked the cost with anxiousness.

Said Dutilh: "To Miss Kip I'll let it go dirt cheap for three hundred and twenty-five. The one Miss—Mrs. Kip has on I'll give away for—ummm, well—say the same price."

Daphne and her mother were sickened. But Daphne was suffering one of those gusts of mania that ruin people. Her soul of souls clamored to wear that very gown that very afternoon. Even to take it off would hurt like flaying.

Lella had the same feeling. Her appetite for resplendent gowns had grown with exercise.

Dutilh took pity on them: "Look here," he said, "I'll make the price two hundred and seventy-five. It's giving them away, but you are such visions in them!"

It was a big reduction, but it left the price still mountain high.

"I want something to wear tomorrow afternoon," Lella said. "I've got to go to a tea and my sister has to go with me."

Daphne had not heard of the tea, but she wanted somewhere to go in that gown.

Dutilh smiled: "Nothing easier. Take the duds with you or let me send them. Where are you living now?"

Lella made a confession: "The trouble is, Mr. Dutilh, that I'm just back from Paris and I haven't a cent left, and Miss Kip is buying her trousseau and has spent more already than she expected to."

Dutilh rose to the bait that he had expected them to dangle: "That's simple. Why not open an account with me? Take the gowns along and pay me when you like."

Lella mumbled, "I should have to ask my husband."

Daphne said, "My father wouldn't like me to start an account."

"Charge it to your sister's account, then, and pay her."

"You say you would charge them both to me?" said Lella.

"Certainly," said Dutilh.

"Send them, then," said Lella, with imperial brevity.

"Thank you," Dutilh smiled. "You shall have them this afternoon. And I'll have them this afternoon. And I'll have them this afternoon."

"He's Awfully Rich, I Suppose," Said Daphne.

by the way, I've just remembered a marvelous design by Paul Poiret's. Let me show it to you."

"Come quick; let's run," said Daphne, and she hurried out of the infernal paradise.

They dawdled on, down the avenue, pausing at window after window, each flaunting opportunities for self-improvement. But Daphne's joy in her new gown was turning to remorse. She was realizing that that parchment-toned tulle needed parchment-toned stockings and slippers and a hat of the same era as the gown.

She was startled from her reveries by the sudden gasp of Lella:

"If there isn't Tom Duane just coming out of his club!"

"I met him last night," said Daphne. "You did? Did he say he knew me?"

Lella was flattered, but loyal: "Nonsense. I was never his to steal. I never loved him, of course. It wouldn't have done any good if I had. Tom Duane's a nonmarrier."

"He's awfully rich, I suppose," said Daphne.

Dinner Stories

The burglar had entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded, and they made some noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard someone moving in the bed, as if about to get up, and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears. "If you don't take off your boots when you come into this house," it said, there's going to be trouble, and a lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to tramp over carpets with your muddy boots on. Go downstairs and take them off this minute."

He went downstairs without a word, but he didn't take off his boots. Instead he went straight out into the night again, and the pat, who was waiting for him, saw a tear glisten in his eye.

"I can't rob that house," he said. "It reminds me of home."

"Do you think you could learn to love me?" asked the young man. "Well, I don't know," replied the sweeter young thing thoughtfully. "I have $5,000 in Liberty bonds, $10,000 invested in good paying stock—"

"Go on; I'm learning."

"And $50,000 in well paying real estate."

"All right, dear; I've learned. Believe me, you're some teacher!"

Milton News

Milton, Dec. 19.—The students of Milton College have pledged their support to a plan of raising a substantial fund as a memorial to the late Dr. Randolph. This fund when raised will be added to the permanent endowment of Milton college, the income of which may perhaps be applied to some specified object in memory of the friend whose labors were generously bestowed upon the task of increasing the endowment of the college.

A recent woman graduate of the college made the suggestion that the most appropriate memorial to Dr. Randolph and the most worthy monument in his honor would be an endowment fund bearing his name. The trustees of the college and the students have appointed a committee to co-operate in carrying out this plan.

The committee of the trustees consists of President William C. Daland, Dr. George W. Post, Sr., and Dr. L. M. Babcock. That of the students consists of Miss Pearl H. Gardner, Miss Isaphene O. Allen and James I. Sullivan. The amount to be set for the fund, will no doubt, be a large one. The committee in charge of this fund will be applied to a specific object or be left as a part of the general endowment funds, is not yet decided. In all probability the trustees will select other plans for the continuation of Dr. Randolph's work, left incomplete at his death.

Home Coming at Du Lac Lodge No. 322 I. O. O. F. Monday evening brought out fifty members. A goodly number of cheery letters were read from absent brothers east, west, north and south and at the close of the session a luncheon was served.

CLINTON NEWS

Clinton, Dec. 16.—The honor roll service board was formally dedicated Tuesday evening and drew quite a large crowd. In the absence of A. Moehlenpach, P. M. Barrus made the presentation address. The drum corps and band played a number of patriotic selections and many well feel proud of our honor board as it is said to be one of the finest in the state. At the top is painted a large eagle and on either side of it a marine and a camp scene. Around the outer edge of the board are red, white and blue electric lights which illuminate it at night. Andrew Anderson of Bergen deserves great credit for the design and work. There are 115 names of men from here, 47 of whom are overseas. Seven are marked with gold stars for having given their lives for their country.

Fred Kuhlow died at his home on School street Tuesday morning after a short illness of influenza, aged thirty-six years. He leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. His body was taken to the home of his father, William Kuhlow, in Janesville, Tuesday evening. The funeral was held there Thursday afternoon.

Patricia sawed recently. Mrs. E. H. Tubbs was a business caller in Janesville, Wednesday.

Mrs. Alice Playter Inman came up from Tiffany, Tuesday evening, and spent the night with her sister, Mrs. Edna Scott, returning home on Wednesday.

Mrs. Eugene Foley and niece spent Tuesday in Janesville.

Mary Inman of Janesville, formerly of Bradford, had a partial stroke of paralysis Sunday morning and is in a critical condition.

Tired, Overworked Mothers What You Need is Vinol

War conditions have made the demand upon a mother's time and energy unlimited. In their zeal to do all in their power for their loved ones, they continually overwork and are soon in a nervous, run-down condition. Vinol, the non-secret cod liver and iron tonic, will build you up and make you strong.

Whitman, Mass. "I suffered from a nervous, run-down condition and loss of strength so it was hard for me to get around and do my work. After other medicines had failed to help me Vinol restored my health and strength and I heartily recommend it to anyone suffering from a nervous, run-down condition."—Mrs. R. M. Little.

Cleveland, Ohio. "I keep house for my husband and myself and got into a weak, run-down condition, no strength, languid and no ambition. After doctoring for awhile and getting no better, I tried Vinol and it surprised me it built me up and strengthened my whole system. It is certainly a good tonic."—Mrs. Wm. D. Dawson.

Pleasant Fields Of Holy Writ

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Fourth Quarter: Lesson XII: Luke II 8-20: December 22, 1918.
Golden Text: There is born to you this day in the city of David a Savior, which is Christ, the Lord. Luke II 11. A CHRISTMAS LESSON: THE BIRTH OF JESUS.

Augustus was most diligent of all the Caesars in obtaining statistics of his vast dominion. His passion for census-taking served Providence well, though he was still unconscious of the contribution he was making toward that most stupendous event of human history. The king's heart was in this instance in the hand of the Lord as the rivers of water; he turned as he wished. The imperial decree issued on the 28th caused two obscure peasants to take a journey along the Jordan—a journey all unnoticed by earth, but every step of which was viewed by heaven with breathless interest. If the Roman method of enrollment had been followed, Joseph and Mary would have taken no journey at all. They would have resided at the place of their residence. But the emperor made a concession to Hebrew prejudice, and allowed the report to be made at their ancestral cities and villages. This brought Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem. But it brought others also on the same errand, and in such numbers as to overtax the places of entertainment. The weary travelers were glad to avail themselves of a stall, from which some beast was turned to make room for them. Midway between Jerusalem and Bethlehem was the "Watch-tower of the Flock," where the sheep intended for temple altars were pastured. The keepers of this sacred flock had a constant objection before them: "The angels of God, and it was exceedingly appropriate that the angelic annunciation of his advent should have been made to them. The prepared message came to prepared minds. Every syllable of this seraphic proclamation is weighted with superlative meaning. "Fear not." The gospel is calculated to disarm our native dread of the supernatural, to make us familiar with angels and fit to associate with them. "Bringing good tidings and evangelizing" are one and the same. That angel was first of a long line of evangelists. To repeat his story is the mission of every believer. "To all people" signifies the universal adaptation of the gospel. "A Savior," because he redeems. "Christ," the Anointed One, solemnly set apart by his Father to this holy and redemptive work. "Lord," because all things were created by him and for him. But this new-born prince will not be found in golden crib or under silken canopy—instead dew-drops shine on his forehead and his bed lies low amid the beasts of the stall. Humiliation, however, is the very seal to his Messiahship. Manger and swaddle are the indorsement of his commission. The sign that he is the fact that he is born in a stable. Now upon the vision of the already enraptured shepherds there bursts a brilliant spectacle. The arch of night is peopled by a multitude of the heavenly host. Wave on wave of seraphic music rolls over all those wide-extended plains. Grandeur oratorio never greeted human ears. But the shepherds were not satisfied with the aesthetic environment afforded by sight and sound. They did not fall to dreaming, debating, or doubting. Their language was plain. "Come to pass." "The Lord has made it known." "Let us go and see it." "The scattered sheep at will may glean, while the shepherds start on a run for Bethlehem. What a word is that: "They found the Babe!" It was no illusion.

The Teacher's Lantern.
Aside from Scripture, the existence of angels can not be proven; but once believing in them on that testimony, their appearance in connection with the Advent is in the highest degree probable and appropriate. These spiritual, intelligent, and holy beings, companions and messengers of God, would be intensely interested in the event, and were the appropriate heralds of it. * * * Noteworthy that these lovely apparitions came to those engaged in commonplace work. The shepherds were in the field, keeping the night-watches. So clearest visions of the spiritual and heavenly come while attending to petty duties. And we will keep our "vision" only by forsaking it betimes to obey the call of duty, as "Legend Beautiful" teaches. The shepherds were not disobedient to the heavenly vision. Scarcely had the radiant forms of the singers faded, and the echo of their hallelujah died away in the Judean hills, when these rustic men were on their way to Bethlehem. A like obedience on the part of those who so often receive the heavenly vision today, would lead to immediate conversion. Men as a rule, no sooner touch the circumference of religion than they fly off at a tangent. Moral earnestness starts for the center, saying, "Let us now go and see!" * * * With heart man believeth, with the tongue confess. The shepherds filled the whole region with what they had seen and heard. * * * The shepherds returned! How could they? After seeing angels, listening to their song, seeing the infant Messiah, how could they come back to the drab work of tending sheep? But they did. There was nothing in their recent experience to give them a distaste for the humble calling. They were even better shepherds than ever before. Religion is the most practical of things. It may make a man fervent, but it also make him diligent.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S DEVOTIONAL SERVICE.

December 22, 1918. Luke II 8-14
Motto: Peace can never be unless it is founded on justice. Blithu Root. NOEL ON EARTH (Christmas Meeting)

The angels at Bethlehem struck the high grace note in the world's anthem in the words "Peace on Earth." Above the din of ten thousand guns in the most unnecessary, sanguinary, destructive war the world has ever known, those words still sound with a silvery clearness as the highest ideal, one which is on the eve of attainment at the very moment when such a consummation seems most remote and unlikely.

PORTER

Porter, Dec. 18.—The teacher and pupils of the Janesville school are having a Christmas program for Saturday evening. The ladies are to bring boxes and the men their well filled purses to purchase the boxes of food.

U. S. OFFICERS FIND SEIZED LINER BRINGING U. S. BOYS HOME WAS CONSTRUCTED BY GERMANS FOR READY USE AS TRANSPORT

Former German liner Leviathan pulling into New York harbor recently with load of U. S. soldiers and group of hero-passengers with German trophies showing how foe yelled "Kammerad" at Chateau-Thierry and the Marne.

The giant liner Leviathan, since the war used as a transport by the U. S., arrived in New York recently with a load of home-coming Yankee soldiers. The government seized this Hamburg-American liner early in the war. She was then called the Vaterland. U. S. navy officials in preparing to transform her into a transport found that German engineers had designed her so that her richly furnished and well equipped cabins could be yanked out on short notice without damage to her, making her easily available for transport use—to carry German soldiers to American shores if the Kaiser saw fit. She ferried 100,000 U. S. soldiers across the ocean to fight against the Germans.

RETURNED FUND THAT WAS RAISED FOR BED

Some months ago Col. Preston of New York City, a man who has been most prominent in war work even before America entered the struggle, gave a talk in the city before several organizations and incidentally mentioned the need of an officers' convalescent hospital to be established in France.

Col. Preston stated that if the citizens of Janesville wished to endow one bed, costing six hundred dollars it would be used for the accommodation of Wisconsin officers. At the meeting more than this sum was subscribed and a committee composed of H. P. Bliss, Frank P. Croak, J. J. Cunningham, was named to handle the matter and the sum of twelve hundred dollars was forwarded to Col. Preston for two beds.

Unfortunately Colonel Preston was taken ill on his return east after his Wisconsin visit and the proposed hospital was never erected nor the money used for the purpose designated. The twelve hundred dollars has been returned to Janesville and is now deposited in the bank waiting the decision of the donors as to what purpose it shall be placed in. In order to reach a decision on this question a meeting of all those who contributed to the fund is called for Monday evening, December 23, at the Chamber of Commerce by the committee in charge to make final disposition of the fund, whether it shall be returned to the individuals or be used for some other purpose.

SMOKE FROM ELECTRIC AUTOMOBILE CALLS OUT THE FIRE DEPARTMENT

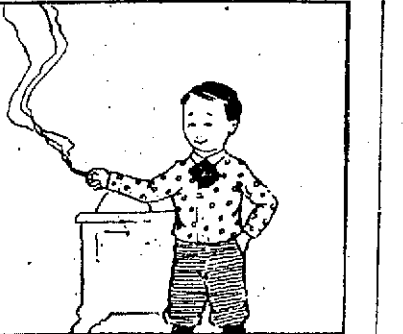

Smoke coming from an electric automobile at the home of Mrs. Frances M. Ingie, 905 Milton Avenue, called out the fire department at two o'clock the afternoon. Defective apparatus caused overheating in the coils which resulted in smoke being formed. It was not necessary to use chemicals to extinguish the supposed fire.

Three Needs of Christian Workers

By REV. B. B. SUTCLIFFE
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

TEXT—Be of good courage and let us behave ourselves valiantly, and let the Lord do that which is good in his sight.
—I Chron. 12:13.

Josh, the commander in chief of David's army, found himself between two fires. The army of the Syrians opposed him on one side and the army of the Ammonites on the other. Employing the best tactics he knew and placing his army to the best advantage, he made an address to his men on the eve of battle. The text is part of that address which reminded them they were about to fight for their people and the cities of their God. His exhortation might well be pondered by all Christians today and especially those who are more or less directly engaged in Christian work.

There are three things upon the surface of this text.

I. The Need of Courage.
It is said of some regiments in human armies that they are so foolish as never to know when they are beaten. It is not foolishness that is the trouble, but a high-hearted courage which will not admit defeat or which takes a defeat and wrestles it into a victory. The Christian worker, above all others, should have such good courage. He has a Leader who is possessed of all wisdom and knowledge—a Leader who knows the secret plans of the enemy. He is aware even of the secret thoughts of the enemy.
He is never taken off his guard, or by surprise. He is fully informed of every movement. He gives promise to his people that no weapon formed against them shall prosper. He is a Leader who not only has all knowledge, but all power to use his knowledge. He is the Invincible One. Sometimes a man finds himself in possession of valuable knowledge which is valueless to him because of a lack of power. He has not the ability to use what he knows. But unto our Lord has been given all power in heaven and in earth.

Be of good courage, then, no matter what odds we face, knowing there is more with us than with the enemy.
The message of the saint of old is well worth remembering—"One with God is always a majority." This is still true. God who gave the victory to his people in olden days is the same God. There is no change in our Leader. He is the same yesterday, today and forever. Following him, the Christian is assured of ultimate victory. It may seem as though we were hedged in by overwhelming forces and defeat is certain, but we may have good courage as we look away from the opposing hosts to the one whom we follow.

II. The Need of Valiant Behavior.
The Revised Version renders this by "play the man." It means simply to "do your best." To do one's best is to behave valiantly. No matter if others may do better than we, the need is to do our best. We are to "play the man" and not be like children who become discouraged because someone else does better than they can do. We must just keep on doing our part to the best of our ability.
Much was dependent on each man of Moses' army behaving valiantly. Much more depends on each Christian doing his best. We must "play the man" for the honor of the name of him whom we are and whom we serve.
He does not expect us to weakly surrender, but to stand up to the fight, beating ourselves valiantly; we must meet his expectations.

Then again, the well being of the church depends on each doing his best. The church is the body of Christ and we are all members of that body. If one member suffers, all the others suffer with it. When one member fails to behave valiantly, all the others are injured. On the other hand, all the members are blessed each time we do our level best. Again our own personal growth in grace follows such behavior. If we would be strong in faith, and experience the delight of the approval of our Lord, we will go forth to "play the man" in the name of our God.

III. The Need of Trust.
"Let the Lord do that which is good in his sight." We are not to think that results from our work shall be in accord with what we imagine they should be. He may have purposes to fulfill by our work other than we know. We are naturally eager to obtain results which are good in our own sight. We may make serious mistakes, not knowing all our Leader knows, and desire results which would not be good in his sight. We need to trust him fully; to believe he knows what is best; to revel in a high-hearted courage which grows from the certainty of final victory; to keep on doing our best and allow him to do that which is good in his sight, irrespective of whether it is good in ours or not.

Conservation of Worry.
"Does your husband worry about the grocery bill?" "No," he says there's no sense in both himself and the grocer worrying over the same bills."

Clean out the attic by getting rid of odds and ends stored there. A little classified ad will do the trick.

MISS EVA B. HOLLIS DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Passed Away At Three O'Clock This Morning—Was Principal Of Garfield School For Several Years.

Miss Eva B. Hollis, principal of the Garfield school, and well known and loved throughout the city, passed away at her home 1320 Mineral Point Avenue at three o'clock this morning after a ten days' illness of influenza and pneumonia. Her untimely death is a distinct shock to the community. Respected and revered by hundreds, her loss will be deeply mourned. She was twenty-nine years of age at the time of her death. She was born in Troy, Illinois, June 28, 1889. She came to this city with her parents when but three years of age. She attended the public schools, graduating from the local high school with the class of 1907. She later attended the state normal school at Watertown, receiving her diploma from that institution in 1911. Since that time she has been engaged in teaching in the schools of this city and at the time of her death was principal of the Garfield school.

She was a devoted member of the Garfield Memorial Methodist church and for several years was superintendent of the intermediate department of the Sunday school. She was active in all church work and took a great interest in civic affairs.

She is survived by her mother, and by two sisters, Nellie M. of Milwaukee, and Etta E. of this city. Her father passed away in 1894.

The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at two-thirty o'clock from the late home, Rev. Lewis officiating. Interment in Oak Hill cemetery. Owing to illness in the home the services will be private.

HOW OUR CAVALRY HORSES FAIR

Just how Uncle Sam cares for his cavalry horses is told in the following article by Charles Francis Darling, president of the Worcester Branch, Massachusetts S. P. C. A., by Lieut. James E. Masterson, veterinary corps, U. S. A., now at Camp Greenleaf, Chicago, Ill. Among many interesting things, Lieut. Masterson writes:

"We have had an exceedingly hot summer down here, and no doubt you are wondering if the horses ever get overheated, sun-struck, etc. Well, ordinarily, the latter conditions might happen, but all kinds of precautions are taken. We work our animals six days a week and only about four or five hours a day. Two in the morning, two in the afternoon, and occasionally a little extra work now and then is allowed. Everything in the United States army is done by system. This wonderful system extends to the stable work and care of animals as well as men.

"All horses and mules are quartered in corrals. These corrals have a three-sided long shed extending on each side. It is 200 feet long, 10 feet wide and 15 feet high with a flat roof pitched just enough to let the water drain off. All parts of the stable except that reached by horses' heads are waterwashed often. Feed boxes are washed and cleaned daily, also disinfected at least once a week.

"The front sides of our stables are entirely open, shielded only from wind and rain by a canvas. If horses do not stand in a draught, the colder the stable the better. This is especially true of the cavalry horses, because if called to take the field suddenly, they will not suffer a sudden chill.

"In case a horse comes in wet, he is rubbed with dry straw until fairly dry, care being taken to follow from hindquarters to head, and always against the way the hair grows. In case he is wet, hot or cold, he is sometimes blancketed. The legs are hand-rubbed and later blanket is removed and horse is groomed.

"Each cavalry man, as a rule, loves his horse far more than words can describe, but some of the work-horses pack-train and mules don't fare quite so well. They can't be abused, however, especially if an officer is near. If you think of anything the society would like to know about camp life or the animals, let me know, and I'll tell you, if possible.

"Uncle Sam certainly takes good care of his men. We have meat three times a day, plenty of sugar, real butter, etc., and in fact, everything a person could wish for except fruit, and I believe there must be a scarcity of fruit here in the south or we would have it."

BILLS ON SHEEP.
The following letter, from an old friend of wide experience, contains a suggestion we would like to see well tested:

North Adams, Mass.
My Dear Mr. Rowley:
During my professional career which extends over a period of half a century it has been my privilege to visit farmers who have kept and raised sheep, and I have observed that where they have put a strap around the neck of some of them to which was attached a bell they had no trouble from dogs. I feel confident from long observation that farmers who own sheep can by putting bells on some of the largest and most active ones, say one to every eight or ten, keep the dogs out of their flock.

The sound of the bells frightens or intimidates the dogs. Farmers are in my opinion too much frightened over the dog-scare, and while this method of which I speak may be of some value to some one. Whether this suggestion is new or old it is certainly worth trying.

Yours sincerely,
H. J. Millard, M. D.

ANIMALS IN ITALIAN ARMY.
In the matter of cruelty to animals the Italian Army is very severe, writes Helene Gleichen in an article entitled "A Mobile X-Ray Section in the Italian Front," in Blackwoods Magazine. "The slightest hint of a soldier being cruel to his beast and he is punished very severely. Men being sent to what are called the Punishment Trenches on the second report; the reason for this being not only humanity, but also the importance of keeping his beast fit and well for the work he has to do."

LONG ARRAIGNED FOR ASSAULT AND BATTERY

Jess Long of Louisville, Kentucky, who stabbed Lawrence Wendert on Tuesday at the new motor plant was arraigned before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court to answer a charge of assault and battery.

Long entered a plea of not guilty, claiming that he acted in self defense. His hearing was set for December 23 at ten o'clock and he was left to the custody of Chief Champion.

FORM CONTRACTS SIGNED BY ROADS

Washington, Dec. 20.—Standard form contracts between the railroad administration and the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad for an annual rental of $2,103,559 and the Minnesota and International railroad for an annual rental of $2,092,465 were signed today. A contract with the Great Northern railroad is expected to be signed shortly.

Abandon New Plan.
La Crosse.—Prompted by a popular vote which was overwhelmingly against the plan, the skip-stop method of operating street cars here has been abandoned by order of County Fuel Administrator D. W. MacVillie.

PRIVATE ARTHUR HILL WOUNDED IN ACTION

Mrs. H. J. Manthel, 609 Locust street has received word that her brother, Private Arthur Hill was severely wounded on September 13th. The telegram stated that no further information was obtainable and that as soon as any word of the injured soldier was received that it would be forwarded.

Private Arthur Hill is twenty-five years of age and enlisted in Co. L, 47th Infantry at Brewster, Minn., on September 21st, 1917. He is well known in Janesville, having lived here for a number of years.

His brother William C. Hill of Co. C, 139th Infantry was officially reported missing in action on September 29. No word from either of the boys has been received by their sister, Mrs. Manthel, in several weeks.

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Dec. 20.—Mrs. Elizabeth Kennedy died Monday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Emma Wait. She was the widow of the late Thomas Kennedy and was about 65 years of age. The funeral was held Wednesday with interment in Calvary cemetery.

The funeral services of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hickey were held yesterday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. James Shickel assisted by Rev. Allen Adams. Lawrence Hickey was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hickey of the town of Cold Spring. In 1914 he was married to Miss Harriet Stubbs of Geneseo. They have two young children, who survive them will be cared for by the grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stubbs.

The children of the fifth, sixth and seventh grades of the east side school, led by Miss Elvira Main, visited eighteen homes last evening and sang Christmas carols.

Kenneth Benson is one of 22 band boys selected to furnish the music on the transport pastories, and is now on the high seas.

The public schools and normal closed today for two weeks vacation. There was a general exit of teachers and students.

Mrs. Geo. Porter has returned to Waukesha, after spending two weeks in this city.

Whitewater merchants will keep their places of business open every night until Christmas.

The report that Whitewater is suffering an epidemic of diphtheria is happily without foundation.

GOOD RECORD BROKEN WHEN HE GETS DRUNK

Barney Horn who was taken before Judge Maxfield in the municipal court about three years ago to answer a charge of drunkenness has not been in court since that time until yesterday and when arraigned before the judge this morning he was unable to give a reason for being drunk.

Horn is known to be a hard working man and has made an excellent record in the past three years. He stated that he came to Janesville yesterday to pay his liberty bonds and he could give no reason for falling off the water wagon.

In consideration of his good behavior and the fact that he has worked steady and bought liberty bonds Judge Maxfield let him off with a fine of three dollars and costs or five days.

Won Its Fight.
Neenah.—Neenah has won its fight against influenza. Cases are on the decrease here but the health department still urges the strictest caution on the part of the public.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Dec. 17.—The funeral of the late Sam Synstegard was held at the local Lutheran church on Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. L. Grimstad the pastor. Interment was in the Lutheran cemetery.

The body of the late Mrs. J. Sullivan was taken to Janesville at an early hour on Wednesday morning, from there they were taken by train to her old home, Dixon, Illinois for burial.

Mrs. B. J. Taylor returned from Watertown on Monday evening where she had been spending a few days with a friend who is ill there.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Purdy went to Brodhead on Wednesday afternoon to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Ruth Whitaker, whose remains were brought from Chicago, where she died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Whitaker was ninety-two years old.

On account of a defective engine attached to the way freight on Wednesday morning the east bound passenger was held upon the local siding for more than an hour while the freight did not get out of the village till after noon.

James Mowse transacted business in Janesville on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Lacey Hall are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby boy which came to their home on Monday. A fairer reported as doing well.

On Saturday, Dec. 21, Rev. Perry Milling, district superintendent will hold the first quarterly conference of the year at the M. E. church, at two o'clock Sunday morning and evening, preaching at both services.

Around the State

Organize Rifle Club.
Wausau.—The members of Company C, Wisconsin State Guards, have organized a rifle club to affiliate with the National Rifle association. By-laws have been adopted and officers elected. Captain Fred R. Becker of Company C is president. Persons who are not members of the company will be accepted for membership and a full equipment for in and out door shooting will soon be received.

Situation Improving.
Wausau.—The influenza situation in this county shows little improvement. In the city there has been slight decrease in the number of new cases reported, due to quarantining and business closing, but at present one hundred homes are under quarantine. In one home in the town of Rib Falls four deaths have occurred within a week. The victims were Mrs. August Kuehn, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. August Kuehn, Jr., and Miss Lena Kuehn.

Christmas Dinner.
Wausau.—Every worthy poor family in Wausau is to have a Christmas dinner provided by the Federated Charities. The Daily Record-Herald recently called for contributions to the fund and the response has been very satisfactory. A larger sum being subscribed than hoped for. As a result the Federated Charities will be enabled to provide toys for the children in the families and delicacies for the aged in addition to delivering baskets filled bountifully with food for the Christmas feast.

No Worry Over Drive.
Wausau.—Marathon county has no worry over the result of the campaign for Red Cross memberships—as for that there is no worry over the matter of funds for any war activity. The county recently established the Marathon War Fund, the revenue coming from voluntary and regular subscriptions. Each member contributes according to his income or means. At present there are between fourteen and fifteen thousand members and this membership carries with it an annual membership in the Marathon county branch of the American Red Cross, the fees being payable from the war fund. However, each member is requested to subscribe for the Red Cross magazine, and to see that his neighbor who is not a member of the War Fund becomes a member of the Red Cross.

Dies In France.
La Crosse.—George C. Sinninger, 20 years old, a member of headquarters company of the 125th infantry, died in France November 10, one day before hostilities ceased, according to a message received by his father.

Succumbs To Flu.
La Crosse.—Miss Emma Irene Bjorkman, 25, graduate of the La Crosse State Normal School and Ripon college, who has been an instructor in physical education in the Minneapolis schools, died of influenza after an illness of nine days.
